Models

The choice of model is very important. Models with spot free hands and beautiful long and straight nail beds are your best choice. All models must have natural nails. Nails may not be extended during the competition. It is therefore very important that the model has beautiful nails of equal length. Models must be over 18 years of age. Models must be able to show a valid ID if the competition management decides to verify their age.

The models' hands may not be recognizable. Models are not allowed to wear any rings, bracelets, watches or other jewellery. Tattoos and/or henna decorations on hands and/or arms are not allowed. Tattoos which can be camouflaged completely can be allowed, if controlled by the organisation. Tattoos on the arms are allowed up until the watch normally is. Participants must make sure that their model does not have any large moles, birthmarks, scars, etc. Long sleeves must be rolled up for the judges.

The hands of the model are checked before the competition. Please note that points are deducted for wounds on the hands or cuticles and injuries suffered during the competition!

Models who wish to use the restroom must be accompanied by the competition management. They are not allowed to leave the competition area by themselves.

Products & necessities

Participants must bring with them all necessary electrical equipment. This includes for example UV/LED lamps, extension cords, adapters and table lights.

Participants may use any brand, provided that all products are clearly labelled.

If the judges are not sure if the participant has used a soak off product, they can decide to soak one or two of the nails.

If they find the participant is using a non-soak-off product, the participant is disqualified immediately.

Procedure

Participants who enter this competition receive the competition rules in advance to ensure they have enough time to prepare themselves for the competition in the best possible way.

Participants must check in at the registration table at least half an hour before the competition starts. Worktables are assigned to the participants and models, in order of registration. The models' nails are checked before the competition to ensure no preliminary work has been done. If the floor judges find out work has been done on the nails before the start of the competition, participant and model are disqualified.

At the start of the competition, each model receives a wristband showing the registration number.

Participants have 45 minutes to complete their work during this competition. After that time, participants are asked to leave the competition area. Participants who start working before the competition starts or keep on working after the competition has ended, are disqualified.

The models are accompanied to the waiting area and judging booths and must stay there until the judges have finished. The models may only leave this area after having received permission from the competition management - under certain conditions and if necessary under supervision. All models MUST stay in this area until all models have been judged. Some of the models may be called back by the judges so they can have another look. Models who do not observe these rules are disqualified.

Divisions

The Benelux Soak Off Championship two divisions¹: beginners & advanced. The participant must therefore consider enrolling in the right division. This is at logon before the start of the competition still controlled by the organisation. The organization reserves where necessary to place the participants in another category, even on the competitionday itself.

End of the competition

When the competition management signals the end of the competition, participants must stop working immediately. Participants who do not stop working are disqualified. Participants are requested to take their belongings and leave the competition area.

Models are accompanied to the judges. Participants are not allowed to join them. Next, the models are called in one by one to enter the judging booths.

Models are requested to speak as little as possible during the assessment of the judges to ensure they can concentrate on their work.

Make sure the wristband showing the registration number is clearly visible for the judges.

Models may only leave the judging area if the competition management has given their approval.

The panel of judges

The panel of judges is made up of 3 to 5 national and international expert judges from the industry. One of them serves as an independent chairman or woman and sees to it that all procedures are observed. He or she also supervises the expert judges from the industry. The panel of judges is not present in the competition area during the competition itself, but gets a special 'judging training'. Each judge is assigned certain criteria by lot and will only be looking at these criteria when performing their judging task. In the event of a tie, the chairman or woman has the final vote. Participants are not judged by the way they work. Only the end result counts.

¹ If one of the divisions have less than 5 participants, both divisions will be merged.

Judging

Participants are judged based on the registration number assigned to them before the competition. The panel of judges does not get to know any of the names of participants or models. The competition uses a blind judging system. This means that the judges only get to see the hands of the models and not the models themselves.

A 1-10 point judging system will be used – 1 being the lowest – 10 being flawless.

Prizes

All participants receive a personalized certificate.

The winners (1st, 2nd and 3rd prize) receive an award. The competition also has a cup for international participants, if there are at least 5 international participants.

After the awards ceremony, the winners are requested to stay near the competition stand should anyone want to take photographs.

Participants can look into the judges' score forms after the awards ceremony.

Competition team of the year

This competition is a part of the Benelux Competition team of the year. This means that points achieved by a team member of a competition team during this contest count towards the total score of that competition team
